The love of husband and wife is the force that welds society together. – John Chrysostom
As the family goes, so goes the nation and so goes the whole world in which we live. – John Paul II

The importance of the family for the life and well-being of society entails a particular responsibility for society to support and strengthen marriage and the family. Civil authority should consider it a grave duty to acknowledge the true nature of marriage and the family, to protect and foster them, to safeguard public morality, and promote domestic prosperity.

We cannot have long-term domestic prosperity without a solid foundation for society and we cannot have that good foundation without strong families.

It would be good to consider that when it comes to good decision making, ownership, voting, purchasing, etc., a person with a rightly formed conscience will wisely understand that true social justice begins with the preservation of life and protection of the family, that non-negotiable matters take precedence over ethnicity, politics, political party affiliation and convenience, and prudently realizes that this order is vital to a balanced life, to individual joy, to cheerfully rear a family and to raise a productive society.
